CORNELL MEN TAKE HONORS IN ABUNDANCE

Every Field Event and One
Relay Won by Them in Indoor Meet.

ALMA RICHARDS SETS RECORD IN HIGH JUMP

Cornell carried off the honors in the first indoor intercollegiate meet held in Madison Square Garden last night. The Ithacans showed they are as much at home on board floors as on the cinder track by winning all the field events and one of the six track contests. The Ithacans scored a bloodless victory in the shot putting contest, where the Cornell team was unopposed.

That the officials of the association had planned well in the arrangement of the relay distances was proved by the manner in which the events resulted. The winners were: 150-yard Penn State, 1500-yard Columbia, 2,000-yard Harvard; 4,000-yard Dartmouth, 8,000-yard Cornell, and medley, Pennsylvania.

Alma Richards of Cornell carried off the individual honors by winning the high jump with 6 feet 4 inches, a new intercollegiate record, and taking second place in the shotput with 42 feet 2½ inches. The duel between Richards and Westley Ober of Yale, who deservedly contested the title, was an exciting one, and a wild ring of spectators surrounded the bar as the baton went up inch by inch. It was a battle for the team as well as the individual honors, as Yale and Cornell were closely matched.

Yale's victory, with one loss, was due to the fact that Cornell's relay team was unopposed.

There was another close contest in the pole vault. It ended with another Cornell victory, when Ross Cornell of Cornell cleared 12 feet and Haydock of Harvard 11 feet. Cornell and Wellen of Penn State tied for second at 12 feet. The Cornell team averaged 11 feet 5 2/3 inches; Harvard was second with 11 feet 4 2/5 inches; Yale third with 10 feet 8 4/5 inches.

Among the unexpected happenings were victories of Penn State in the 100-yard relay and of Columbia in the 150-yard relay. Penn State disposed of Pennsylvania, Yale and other good teams, while Columbia had the satisfaction of beating not only Harvard, but the Princeton team, which included champions like Meredith and Lippincott.

W. R. Granger, the colored runner of Dartmouth, was the hero of the most desperately fought race of the night, the 600-yard relay, in which four men each ran 150 yards. Yale and Dartmouth were contenders from the start, but at the end of the first relay, Atta of Princeton was on even terms with the Yale leader. The second man made a poor run off and Riley of Dartmouth took the lead from him. In the third, Riley took over the running for Yale and in his last lap opened up a can of ten yards for Granger to overtake. Overton was the last man for Yale, and before he had gone, lap Granger was close behind him. The positions did not change until the last lap, when Granger juked around him. It was a stirring finish, with the adherents of both contestants cheering them on.

At the last turn Overton drew up to Granger's shoulder, but the Dartmouth man staggered on and fought gamely to the finish, where he had a hard four-foot lead. Princeton finished third, half a yard behind, but was disqualified for improperly passing the baton. Thus gave third place to Cornell. Granger fell down at the finish and had to be carried off the track.

Cornell started first in the first set of the 500-yard relay. Ingersoll started first for the Ithacans and opened a gap of five yards on Appleby of Columbia. The local boys lost more ground on every relay and Cornell won by fifteen yards in 1 minute 24 3/5 seconds.
